Septs are smaller clans and families, with a different surname, who follow another family's chief. These smaller septs then comprise, and are part of, the chief's larger clan. A sept might follow another chief if two families were linked through marriage or for greater protection. Sometimes these septs were almost as powerful as the main clan and the bonding of the two brought added strength to both.

Family Names. Many names were adopted by MacGregors due to Proscription. Some families retained the new names when Proscription was lifted in 1774, whilst others reverted to their rightful name of MacGregor (spelling variants are accepted with M', Mc and Mac considered interchangeable).

The Society extends a warm welcome to any...

- Persons bearing names included in List A and to those with a maternal descent from an eligible person
- Persons bearing the names of descent from Lists B and C who can show evidence of descent or a family tradition of MacGregor connection; and,
- Names in List D are properly the domain of other Clan and Family societies. However, we welcome enquiries from persons bearing these names who can show their descent from a MacGregor who adopted the name as an alias.
